exe and select "Run as administrator"nStart the gamenWhen prompted, type "dune2000" in the "In Game" fieldnPress "ENTER"nYou should see the Dune logoQ: How to get the list of OWIN default providers The OWIN documentation shows the list of OWIN default providers. Is there a way to retrieve this list using the dotnetopenauth library? A: Following info can be used to get the list of providers from the default OWIN pipeline in an app: app.Use(async (context, next) => { // Get the default OWIN pipeline from the current request. // It's null when the request is not using OWIN. var currentPipeline = context.GetOwinContext().Get(); if (currentPipeline == null) { return; } // Get the OWIN default providers. var defaultProviders = currentPipeline.GetDefaultProviders(); // Now that you've got the default providers, you can log them and let the rest of the pipeline continue. context.Logger.LogInformation("Default OWIN Providers: {DefaultProviders}", defaultProviders); await next(); }); It was unclear how Hahn would decide whether to sign with them or another club. Hahn has publicly said he would sign in a right-back role and is yet to start a game in the Champions League this season, as he was not in the squad during the tie against Juventus. But the two clubs have denied ever having agreed terms on a deal for the German. "We can confirm that we did not have any talks with Dortmund concerning Roman Hafner," Dortmund's sporting director Michael Zorc said in a statement. "As far as I know, he is now with Bayern and we wish him all the best for the future." Bayern's sporting director Hasan Salihamidzic added: "As far as Roman Hafner is concerned, we're in no way talking to Bayern or an agreement being in place 82157476af
